

BUSINESS ALBUM

PHOTOS BY MAXIMILIAN FRANZ / THE DAILY RECORD

A close-up view of The Daily Record's Most Admired CEOs award.

THE DAILY RECORD RECOGNIZES MOST ADMIRABLE CEOs

More than 200 people gathered Nov. 9 at The BWI Hilton to celebrate The Daily Record's 2017 Most Admired CEOs as 27 business and nonprofit leaders from across Maryland were recognized for their leadership and professionalism.

"To be a Most Admired CEO means that you have gained the respect and admiration of those around you," The Daily Record publisher Suzanne Fischer-Huettner, said. "Our honorees this year were nominated by co-workers, community organizations and other leaders, not just for their professional achievements but because they are truly admired by their peers and employees."

Three honorees were inducted into the Circle of Leadership for receiving recognition three times: Ronald Attman, Acme Paper & Supply; Lisa Rusyniak, Goodwill Industries of the Chesapeake Inc.; and Joan Webb Scornaienchi, HC DrugFree.

All winners were chosen based on their leadership and vision, competitiveness and innovation, community leadership and service, financial performance and growth, corporate leadership and board service and nonprofit involvement.

MECU of Baltimore was the event's reception sponsor.

From left, Shirley Mowery, a business development director with Hertzbach & Co.; John Hamilton, the president and CEO of MECU of Baltimore and a Most Admired CEO award winner; Lyn Farrow, vice president for development and public policy with Goodwill Industries of the Chesapeake; and Bob Kimmons, a director with Goodwill Industries of the Chesapeake Inc., take time for a photo during The Daily Record's 2017 Most Admired CEOs celebration.

From left, Jody Thomas, vice president of communications and marketing with The Better Business Bureau Serving Greater Maryland; Angie Barnett, the president and CEO of The Better Business Bureau Serving Greater Maryland and a Most Admired CEO award winner, share a glass of wine with Melissa McGuire, with the Law offices of Melissa Menkel McGuire, during The Daily Record's 2017 Most Admired CEOs celebration.

From left, Deborah Diehl, a partner with the law firm Whiteford, Taylor and Preson; Violet Apple, the CEO of Girl Scouts of Maryland and a Most Admired CEO award winner; Mariah Hwang, a principal with the law firm Miles & Stockbridge P.C.; and Gwendolyn Skillern, senior vice president and general auditor with CareFirst BlueCross BlueShield, enjoy the evening at the BWI Hilton for The Daily Record's 2017 Most Admired CEOs celebration.

Most Admired CEO award winners Lisa Rusyniak, left, the president and CEO of Goodwill Industries of the Chesapeake Inc., and Ron Causey, the CEO of SC&H Group, enjoy a conversation during awards event at the BWI Hilton.